

Course Overview

Now in its 25th year, the Connecticut Trauma Conference continues to provide high quality education in trauma, critical care, and injury prevention. This year's speakers come from local, regional, and national centers and will share their expertise in trauma care across the continuum. This year's agenda includes our popular point-counterpoint session. Our experts will share their knowledge on complex, low frequency trauma – sharing from different perspectives across the continuum of trauma care. We have also included issues in pediatric trauma care – small humans with big care challenges. This conference, designed to educate caregivers, draws local and regional professionals from across the spectrum of trauma care - pre-hospital, nurses, advanced practice providers, physicians from all specialties, and many essential providers.

The learning objectives of this meeting are:

- Discuss the unique aspects in the care of trauma patients who have sustained pelvic injury
- Recognize the elements of care specific to a mass casualty event
- Apply current practices to address challenges in the pre-hospital care of trauma patients
- Discuss the challenges nurses and other non-physician providers face in the care of trauma patients
- Identify the specific issues associated with the pediatric trauma patient
